WE NOMINATE

Gardner Patterson, 45-year old economist and educational administrator, who on the threshold of the "space age" is undertaking one of the most challenging assignments in American higher education. Where scientists, engineers and high-level gadgeteers are charting the once-impenetrable cosmic darkness, Patterson as Director of Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs is heading the committee which is charged with hammering out a far-reaching graduate program designed to train personnel for public careers and made possible by anonymous donors with the establishment of an endowed foundation with assets of some $35,000,000.

The dramatic announcements of the creation of Foundation "X," the largest anonymous gift in the history of American colleges and universities, threw the spotlight on Patterson and his faculty colleagues who for the past several months have been exploring matters curricular, new teaching methods, the possibility of incorporating government experience into a new program, and all possible ways of bringing promising men and women to the highest level of professional competence. The Wilson School's mission was defined in no uncertain terms by President Robert F. Goheen: "to establish education for the public service at a level of excellence comparable to the country's best schools of medicine and law."

An authority in international finance with broad experience as a member of government missions overseas, and called to Princeton in 1949 to succeed the celebrated "money doctor," the late Edwin W. Kemmerer, as director of the University's International Finance Section, Patterson is a hard-driving executive whose three years as Director of the Wilson School have been marked by significant developments with the School. For instance, the School's present graduate program, that in the years ahead will jump from 30-plus students to approximately 100, was completely retooled in 1958-59 for the express purpose of preparing men for decision-making positions in areas bearing upon "the interests and welfare of the general public."

Patterson, Iowa-born and a member of the Class of 1938 at the University of Michigan, belongs to the generation of scholar-teachers whose interests and achievements are balanced between teaching and research and the public service. Several times in recent years, on leave from his Princeton duties, he has advised United States officials in various sections of the Mediterranean Basin. In 1955-56, the year following his advancement to a full professorship, he was cited for meritorious service by State Department's International Cooperation Administration after he had devoted long months to helping formulate United States economic policies in Turkey.

As he plots for faculty approval "Program X," that will undoubtedly call for increased faculty in the social sciences, expanded physical facilities, and a new "system" of fellowships aimed at college graduates as well as at government officials "in mid-career," Patterson will be drawing upon a background which includes teaching at Harvard and Michigan, duty in North Africa, the Middle East and the Balkan Nations, and the direction of one of the highly significant Princeton conferences of the past decade. It was in the hot summer of 1957 that Patterson quarterbacked the Wilson School's conference on "The Future of NATO," a confab attracting government executives, legislators, scholars, editors and others influential in foreign affairs.

For helping lay the groundwork for what promises to be one of the major advances of our times in post-graduate education; for seeking ways of developing the kind of leadership that is so urgently needed in facing the "real problems here on earth"; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

THE WRECKERS MOVE IN: The house at 20 Library Place in which the late Dr. and Mrs. Charles Erdman lived for half a century is being razed by Princeton Theological Seminary because it is uneconomical to maintain. The brick structure, one of the finest houses of its day, was built in 1871. See story below. (Staff Photo.)

THE CHANGING SCENE

New Face for Route One. The growth of Princeton as an industrial and research center and the consequent need for housing if new employees of new firms are to make their lives here, was emphasized again this week when the Princeton Recreation Center, Inc., asked the West Windsor Zoning Board for a special permit to erect a garden apartment of 200 units — and an eventual 600 — on its Route One property.

The request was tabled by the board for further study and will probably not be acted upon until fall, according to municipal officials.

James S. Norris of State Road 206, appearing for Princeton Recreation Center, Inc., said that his firm planned to construct one and two-bedroom units, eight units to a building. Sixty percent would be one-bedroom, forty percent would be two, he said.

The project, set back 1100 feet from the highway, would have off-street parking at a ratio of two parking spaces for each unit. At first, only 120 of the requested 200 units would be built, and with these, the firm would build a swimming pool, laundry rooms and a play area for children. The cost of the apartments is estimated at $1,300,000, Mr. Norris told the Board.

In response to questions about utilities, Mr. Norris said that his firm plans to install its own package sewage system which would be large enough to take care of the 600 units when the project is complete and the bowling alleys, ice skating rink and motel planned by the firm. He also said that two wells producing 125 gallons per minute each would be sufficient.

Three Protest. Three residents of West Windsor appeared at the hearing to protest the apartments.

"It would be disastrous to the town to grant this permit," said Charles Raleigh, 13 Canoe Brook Drive. He cited the additional number of school children who would come to the Township to live and would have to be squeezed into the school system, and he also pointed out the need for increased fire protection and other municipal services.

Leland Roth, Hightstown Road, and Anthony Vannella, 15 Piedmont Drive, also expressed their objections to the apartments.

In addition to asking for a special permit for its apartments, Princeton Recreation asked for a variance to add 20 bowling lanes and an ice-skating rink to the 20 lanes it already has on the Route One property. This variance was granted by the Board, which had previously, in 1959, granted a variance for the original 20 lanes. The lanes are operated on a 21-year lease by World-wide Bowling, and will open October 1.

On its 102-acre property on Route One, Princeton Recreation already has, in addition to the lanes, a 96-unit motel, the Ivy Motor Inn, which will open its motel, restaurant and swimming facilities on September 1, according to Mr. Norris. Present installations amount to an outlay of approximately $600,000, Mr. Norris said.

Requests by Princeton Recreation for variances to erect two over-size signs were tabled by the Zoning Board.

Ralph Di Giovanni of Philadelphia is president of Princeton Recration, Inc. Mr. Norris is secretary and treasurer.

ERDMAN HOUSE RAZED

By Seminary. The possibility of Seminary student housing on Library Place was raised this week when Princeton Theological Seminary tore down the Charles R. Erdman house at 20 Library Place. Seminary spokesmen said that the 90-year-old dwelling was demolished because it was too expensive to maintain and that the land would be left vacant and planted with grass and shrubs.

However, the exigencies of the Seminary's housing situation are such that speculation immediately arose about a possible student housing project on the site.

The property, which goes all the way through to Edgehill Street, is in an R-1 residential zone; that is, a zone for single family dwellings only. Approval of Seminary plans for an apartment project would have to come from Borough Council. The Seminary once purchased land on The Great Road for a second campus, but sold the property last month to a developer when strong neighborhood opposition developed.

The Seminary would neither confirm nor deny the existence of blueprints for student housing on the Erdman House site.

Before razing operations began Monday, the Seminary removed from the house all fixtures which would be useful in the repair of other buildings: locks, hinges, doors of standard size, faucets and even bathroom fixtures. Razing operations will cost the Seminary about $4,000. Castoro and Co., Hopewell, is the contractor.

Ten Years Ago In Princeton

TOWN TOPICS, August 9, 1951: Unaccustomed to revenues from parking meters, the Borough underestimated by a wide margin income from this source for their first full year of operation . . . installed in the fall of 1950, the meters were budgeted for $30,000 in 1957 but by August 1 it was evident they would produce about $38,000

In a 16-page legal advertisement in the Trenton Times, the names of New Jersey residents who had failed to claim back dividends from the United States Steel Corporation were listed. . . . if not spoken for after the advertisement appeared, the State of New Jersey stood to add $500,000 to its treasury. . . . half a dozen Princetonians were included in the listing, topped by Mrs. G. Howard Bright, 25 Cleveland Lane, who realized a windfall of $131.25.

Starlings continued to plague the Maple-Spruce Street neighborhood, but no had a suggestion for getting rid of the pests . . . in another New Jersey community, householders erected 41 poles, each with a paper owl, in as many trees and supplemented the display with phonograph records which ground out owl-like screeches. . . . the plan worked to perfection, the starlings shunning the 41 paper-owl-infested trees, leaving neighborhood residents with only one problem: how to equip the 359 trees in the area in similar fashion.

William Bendix and Elizabeth Dillon were due at the McCarter in "Detective Story". . . . Walt Disney's "Alice in Wonderland" was at the Playhouse. . . . the Garden was offering a pair of screwball comedies. Donald O'Connor in "Double Crosshones," followed by Mickey Rooney in "He's a Cockeyed Wonder."

The pitching of Sherman Bates and the hitting of Buster Thomas and Tom Phox carried the Phantoms close to a third straight softball title. . . . King's Inn was close to the championship in the Girls League . . . Donald Montgomery and Miss Lidie McKinney won the mixed doubles title as the tennis tournaments came to a close, defeating John Funkhouser and Miss Barbara Gage.

On the birth list at Princeton Hospital were sons to Mr and Mrs. Rubin Schwartzstein, 23 Jefferson Road; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Tash, Princeton Pike; daughters to Mr. and Mrs Richard Kidd, 21½ Jackson; Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hoagland, 125 John.

John H Wallace Jr., was "Man of the Week" following his appointment as assistant director of the Forrestal Research Center. . . . he was cited "for playing a major role in a project which may well be the most important step Princeton has taken since it declared itself a University."

The Clothes Lines expanded on Palmer Square, moving from 33 to 53-57, and Sears, Boebuck likewise announced plans to take over larger quarters there, going from 53-57 to 65-67, opposite the Playhouse. . . . in the New Jersey Poll, a majority expressed the belief that wage and price controls should be kept and the armed forces maintained at the same level, even if the Korean War should end soon

Person To Person

A friend was telling us about transatlantic cables used for cablegrams between Europe and America.

The subject came up because only recently, in 1956, the first transatlantic cable capable of carrying the telephoned voice was completed. Beginning in 1927, it was possible to telephone between America and Europe, but until 1956, the voice was transmitted over the ocean by radio, picked up by telephone receiving stations on land, and then finished its journey over telephone wires to the individuals at either end.

The first successful transatlantic cable for transmitting the dots and dashes of the Morse Code, was completed in 1866, which was a tremendous step forward in communications between the old and new worlds, but nobody would then have dreamed that in the not too distant future voices would be heard across the ocean. This is the miracle of progress, that has been known in no other era in the history of the world.

In our small way, we, too, in the automobile business, keep pace with every step forward in our field, so that both in providing you with your car and servicing it, you will enjoy the last word in modern conveniences and efficienc.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

For Harriet Drive Culvert. The problem of that old man river, this time in the form of a rain-swollen Harry's Brook, rolled right up to the feet of Borough Council and stopped there Tuesday night. The problem, as put by residents whose property was damaged by the rampaging brook late last month, is whether the Harriet Drive culvert is the Borough's responsibility.

In letters to the Mayor and Council, Kenneth A. Wells, 61 Harriet Drive, and Robert S. Christie, 67 Harriet Drive, both complained that the culvert by which Harry's Brook passes under Harriet Drive is inadequate Their properties, which bracket the brook, were hard hit in the July 29 storm.

Borough Engineer Arthur T. Brokaw reported the exact status of the culvert to be somewhat vague. A thorough check of available records showed that the culvert was built in 1945, but apparently the final plans were never approved, according to Mr. Brokaw.

A twin 54" round culvert was originally proposed The county approved this design, but suggested a box culvert would be better. The existing box culvert (about 3½x6 feet) was never approved, however, and is smaller than the 54" tubes.

Culvert Comes with Street. The Borough received the culvert when it accepted the street in 1954. In 1957 the County refused to take responsibility for the maintenance of the culvert because it was undersized and because the downstream bed was not adequate.

Apparently then, the only only way the Borough can get the culvert off its hands is to enlarge it and the downstream channel Mr. Brokaw will meet with County officials on the problem, possibly with the affected property owners and Township representatives attending also.

On a more cheerful note, Councilman Albert Austen reported Richard Kazmaier, former Princeton University football All-American, had proposed building a combination garage-bowling alley in downtown Princeton. Mr. Kazmaier, now president of Major League Bowling and Recreation Inc., will meet with Mr. Austen later this month.

Borough Council also

- Approved after a public hearing an ordinance to grant limited property tax exemptions to property owners over 65 earning not more than $5000.
- Waived the building permit fee for the expansion of Princeton Hospital's X-ray department.
- Cleared from the books the accounts of 12 delinquent tax payers from the years 1958, 1959 and 1960.
- Heard that Committeeman William Walker plans to introduce resolution in September to waive building permit fees on bomb shelters.
- Approved a request by the Plymouth Brethren to hold open air meeting September 2 and 3 at Palmer Square and Nassau Street.

NEW SCHOOL STARTED

At Community Park. Ground was broken Tuesday for the Township's Community Park School, located on Witherspoon Street opposite Guyot Avenue. The 22 classrooms and two kindergarten rooms should be completed in time for the 1962 school year.

The facilities on the seven-acre site will include an enclosed gymnasium, locker rooms, showers and other recreational installations, to be used by both the school and the community. A bond issue of $1,150,000 was approved in February. The cost estimate has been reduced by $100,000 since that time, and the Board of Education will issue bonds accordingly.

The school is designed to accommodate 600 students, with ten classrooms and the two kindergarten rooms allocated to pupils through the fifth grade. Two rooms will be used for educable classes, and ten for sixth grade students, who will receive some specialized instruction for transition to junior high school.

In addition to the recreation facilities, special purpose rooms will include a library, a combined auditorium - lunch room and an art-music room. These will be designed for community and school use.

Two Stories and Wing. The architectural plans for the new school, developed by Fulmer and Bowers, call for a two-story classroom structure separated from the wing containing the special purpose rooms by the administrative area. Entrances to the recreation area and other rooms will be provided, both from the street and from the park, so that the classrooms need not be opened.

The construction of the new school will enable the Township to maintain an average of 25 students per room, with individual attention, close contact with parents and adequate supervision of instruction.

The educational plan for the school was prepared by William D. Purcell, former Township superintendent of schools, and the teaching and administrative staff. The plan was reviewed by a citizens' advisory committee, and adopted by the Board last fall.

SIDEWALKS WIN

In Township Voting. Sidewalks for three Township streets were approved by Committee Monday night following public hearing, and new ordinances were introduced for sidewalks on two more. Public hearings on the new ordinances — Jefferson Road and Moore Street — were scheduled for 8 p.m. on August 28.

Sidewalks for both sides of Cedar Lane from the Borough line south to Sycamore, and for both sides of Abernathy from Magnolia to Snowden, were unanimously approved without opposition from residents except for some concern about trees on the right-of-way. The Cedar Lane walks have been ordinanced for $4800 and the Abernathy walks for $5400.

Opposition arose, however, in the Grover Avenue case. The $6600 ordinance provides for walks on both sides from Franklin to Clearview; however, letters from four Grover and Dorann Avenue residents protested that the street was wide enough to walk in safety, that most school children using the street rode bicycles anyway, and that there was little traffic on Grover.

Mrs. Edward B. Meservey, 72 Dorann Avenue, suggested that Committee build a sidewalk on one side and a bicycle path on the other. This suggestion caught the approval of Committeeman Thomas P. Cook, who expressed his doubts about the need for a sidewalk on both sides.

Committeeman John S. Mount quoted the sidewalk subcommittee's report that Grover was "hazardous", "thickly populated," heavy with Shopping Center traffic and difficult to negotiate because of its curving hill into Franklin.

"For Safety's Sake." "It is a critical area for population density," observed Committeeman Maurice F. Healy, "and for safety's sake, I think the walks should be in before school."

Mr. Cook then moved the adoption of an amendment providing for a sidewalk on the west side only, deferring until "needed" a sidewalk on the east. No one seconded his motion. In the vote on the ordinance, Mr. Cook voted "no" and the ordinance passed, 3-1.

Henry J. Frank, 273 Jefferson Road, chairman of the Traffic Safety Committee, asked how much money had been spent for sidewalks. He was told that the 1961 capital improvements budget recommended $190,000, but that only $90,000 would actually have been spent by the end of the year.

A. M. Serling, 395 Franklin, expressed concern about speeding cars and heavy traffic on Franklin, and suggested built-in bumps to deter speeders. He also asked the Township to provide affected residents with information written in layman's terms about engineering plans for street widening, sidewalks, curbs and so on, to avoid rumors and misinformation.

In other business, Committee passed the multi-purpose $76,700 bond ordinance which it had tabled July 24 because not enough Committeemen were present. Mr. Healy postponed his vacation to attend Committee Monday night and provide the necessary vote.

Committee also approved the Birch to Valley Witherspoon sewer extension which will serve the Community Park School and alleviate the overloaded Birch, John, Leigh Avenue sewers. The Borough may join the Township in helping to pay for the $27,900 improvement, but Mayor R. Kenneth Fairman said the situation was so urgent that the Township could not wait.

Sidewalks for both sides of Jefferson and for the east side of Moore from the end of the present walk to the junction of Moore and Jefferson, were approved on first reading, and public hearing scheduled for August 28 at 8 p.m.

Public hearings will also be held on August 28 on the Herrontown Road and Circle sewer assessment, and on an ordinance to improve and accept into the road system, Leavitt Lane, which has been a private street.

Mayor Fairman announced that there will be no Township Committee meeting on Monday, August 21.

NOW THE SCHOOL CAN BE BUILT: Once the formal ceremonies of ground-breaking are over, the bulldozers and contractors can move in. That's the way it will be on Witherspoon Street, now that ground has been broken for the Township's Community Park School. At the ceremonies Tuesday were (left to right) O. Kline Fulmer, architect; Thomas P. Cook, representing Township Committee; Leonard M. Hymerling, chairman of the school board's building committee; Mrs. Jess Epstein (with shovel), president of the Board of Education; Albridge C. Smith, III, Community Gardens' trustee; and Dr. John McKenna, acting superintendent of Township Schools. (Staff Photo)

Gordon, 38, 89 Linden Lane, $15 for backing into a highway; Bernard DeVido 20, Brunswick Pike, $12 for making an improper turn, Robert T Wallace, Sr, 21 Palmer Square, $14 for careless driving; Ansley J Coale Jr., 18, 155 Edgerstoune Road $12 for going through a red light, and Pietro D Negare, 32, 15 Charlton Street, $15 for failure to keep to the right

MOVING IS A CHORE

American Cyanamid Finds. If you think moving one family is difficult, consider the problem of transplanting a total of 350 employees over the space of a month and a half This is approximately what American Cyanamid will undertake next week as it begins staffing its $9 million Agricultural Center in West Windsor Township

Unlike several firms which have moved into the Princeton area while small and then grown, American Cyanamid is assembling a full-sized Agricultural Division here. Originally scheduled to be completed by September 1 but delayed by construction problems, the move will now begin in mid-August and end in late September

Individuals will be brought from New York City, Pearl River, N Y, and Stamford, Conn., to consolidate the Agricultural Division on the 640-acre site east of Route 1 at Clarksville The 350 newcomers will constitute the core of the Center's staff of 550, with the remainder including individuals already working here and secretaries to be hired locally

The move will be made in groups to simplify the physical problems of arranging offices and laboratories and and starting them functioning again, with the Animal Research and Industrial Development group (from Pearl River, N. Y.) arriving first and the divisional headquarters group (from 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York City), last. A cafeteria with a capacity of 175 at the Center will open Monday.

Nice thought that it won't be hot, but 1961 is threatening to break a record for the number of days with temperature readings above 90. Last week was a little better (none higher than 89 and two days when the thermometer did not top 74) but summer isn't over.

More near-90 readings are due between now and Sunday, with the usual forecast of weekend showers also a part of the picture. August traditionally provides less heat and humidity than July, but so far tradition was being firmly flouted

News Of The THEATRES

(A review of "Romeo and Jeannette," current Princeton Players production, will be found on Page 10.)

THREE ONE-ACTERS

On Players' Schedule. Genet, Arrabal and Edna St Vincent Millay will be represented in the forthcoming production of the Princeton Players to be presented next Tuesday through Saturday. Players' offerings are given at Princeton Country Day School.

The three one-act plays to be given are "Aria da Capo", by Millay, "Picnic on the Battlefield" by the young Spanish playwright, Arrabal and "The Maids " by Genet, whose two plays, "The Balcony" and "The Blacks" are currently running off Broadway.

In "Aria da Capa", Miss Millay tells of two shepherds who fight over a piece of land and eventually strangle each other while Columbine and Pierrot ignore them in favor of love-making George Reinholt will play Pierrot.

STAR IN ANOUILH COMEDY: Paul Glickler and Maria Tucci star in the Princeton Players' production of Jean Anouilh's "Romeo and Jeannette." The romantic comedy is being offered in the Princeton Country Day School auditorium through Saturday. (Staff Photo.)

"Picnic on the Battlefield" delivers its anti-war message through the medium of farce. In "Picnic", the parents of a young soldier visit him at the front, invite an enemy soldier to eat with them, put up umbrellas to shield themselves in a bombardment and promise two stretcher bearers that they can have any corpses that turn up.

Genet, in "The Maids", experiments again with illusion and reality, depicting two maids who act out the master-servant relationship. Robert Sugarman, who directed "I Am A Camera" and Romeo Jeannette" for the Players, will direct the Genet work.

Curtain times will be 8:30 Tuesday through Thursday and 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Reservations may be made by calling WA 1-6598.

THE PLAYHOUSE

Fanny (August 9-15) proves that it is possible for the same person to tell the same story in two different ways and make each production completely enchanting. Six years ago Joshua Logan was responsible for the Broadway hit musical "Fanny." Now Mr. Logan has re-done "Fanny" for the screen, coming up with a new version which captures the best of the musical and dispenses with the less essential ingredients.

One of these less essential ingredients is the music, which has been relegated to the background. Because the tale itself is so warm and captivating, however, this is no great loss. If anything, the film moves faster than did the show; it certainly proceeds at a more even pace.

The story again comes from Marcel Pagnol's trilogy, with Leslie Caron now starring in the title role of fish-monger's daughter who falls in love with the waterfront cafe owner's son (Horst Buchholz). Maurice Chevalier, with strong French accent but without song, is the wealthy widower who marries Fanny after she becomes expectant, and Charles Boyer is his crony and the father of Fanny's true love. Color photography by Jack Cardiff brings out the beautiful Marseilles scenery. Recommended.

By Love Possessed (August 16-22) emphasizes the problems of effectively transferring a best-selling novel to the motion picture screen. Apparently scriptwriter John Dennis and director John Sturges chose to reproduce the plot of James Gould Cozzens' novel rather than the essence (if the latter was possible at all). Whereas the novel was like a plant which grew slowly and developed deep roots, the movie is more of a weed-like vine, presenting a tangled mass above ground with virtually no roots.

The cast has been lifted in its entirely from the novel and almost without exception, fine actors and actresses have been chosen for the key roles. Efrem Zimbalist Jr. is the successful, proper lawyer, while Barbara Bel Geddes is his rather unhappy wife. Lana Turner has aged sufficiently to be effective as the associate's wife in whom Zimbalist finds escape, and Jason Robards Jr. is her loving spouse. George Hamilton and

Question of the Week

Question: Whom do you think are the better managers of money men or women?
Where asked: Palmer Square.

Mrs. Edmond Carter, 48 Markham Road, housewife: I think women are. They can make a dollar stretch a lot farther than a man can.

Mrs. Martin Brown, 31 Markham Road, housewife: The women. I think they look for bargains more than men do. Maybe its because they have more time—I know I do.

Charles C. Davis, 10 Quaker Road, engineer: In higher finances, I would say men are; on a household level I would say women are at least the equal to and perhaps better than men.

Miss Veronica Haylock, Arreton Road, nurse: Men, of course. They have more logic than women and are more stable.

Dr. Harry Ulrich, 25 Palmer Square, minister and director of Presbyterian Minister's Fund: Men, because women are more generous. They have a generous disposition and therefore they don't nail it down as well as the men do. The men know that when that last dollar is gone, it's gone.

Miss Connie Nini, 76 Spruce Street, dressmaker: I think the women. They like to buy nice things for the house and nice clothes and they'll make sure they have enough left over to buy these things.

Gregg Dougherty, 95 Library Place, retired professor: Men. I think they simply have more information and are more used to handling money. I know women will give you an argument on this and I don't doubt that some women can handle money better than men but, on the average, men are probably better.

Miss Joan Zemaitis, Cranbury Road, Princeton Junction, secretary: I know women disperse money faster than men but I can't say for sure whether they are better managers of it. I really haven't had any chance to compare yet, the only money I've handled so far has been my own.

Floyd Hickman, senior at Westminster Choir College: I think men are normally, because they're more familiar with the business field.

Miss Barbara Coar, Raven Rock, pubheist: Men, definitely. I know I just never have any. No matter what I do or how much I plan, I just never seem to have enough. I wish I didn't have to handle it at all—I hate it. I can do more without money than I can do with it.

Leonard Dunk, Canal Road, Rocky Hill, car salesman: Fundamentally, women are, because I think, basically, they have more of the money to handle in connection with household and living expenses. They are forced to manage it to live within the bounds of the family needs and, at the same time, forced to save for this and that. Let's give the women a boost.

Mrs. Richard Reed, Cleveland Road, housewife: I think women are because they have more contact with money every day. I also think they have more time to take care of the check book and so on. It works out that way in our family.

John Logan, 228 N. Harrison Street, truck driver: I have to say women, because my wife manages most of the money in our house.

Mrs. Henry L. Savage, 210 Prospect Avenue, housewife: I think men are. They've had the longer experience; we're just beginning. I have read that men have left so much money in care of their women that women are now the greater possessors of capital.

Daniel Barker, Graduate College, geology student: Women, but no expansion on that comment.

Miss Pat Vogt, Varsity Avenue, Penns Neck, dental assistant: I think women are. Men tend to spend more money for things like fishing, sporting equipment, and cars, where women tend to be more conservative with money.

Gerald L. Carlson, 82 Harris Road, minister: Men, no question about that. Man was created to be the head of the family and that included the family pocketbook. Women—you can never trust them. They're susceptible to every sale and blandishment. There are some women who are sharp, but only a few.

Miss Joan Allen, Stuyvesant Avenue, Trenton, junior management consultant: I guess equally so. I think men can manage their affairs; they seem to be able to before they are married. I think women can do equally as well.

William F. Caldwell, Montclair, textile salesman: From my own experience, I would say women. I think they, more or less, realize that they have to economize and live.

BRING OUT THE DYE POT

To Mix and Match. Sweaters and skirts are paired off in astonishing variety at Bellows this fall: you would have to be a computer to figure out how many combinations you could make out of, say, half a dozen sweaters and three or four skirts.

Fur blend sweaters have been dyed to match the solids or the colors in a group of plaid skirts cut with hip stitching and graceful pleats, unpressed pleats, sheath darts or that gored "A" flare.

A ruddy shade of cranberry red, myrtle gold, chocolate, deep honey are the colors in the fur blend sweaters. They combine with skirts like the hipstitch (no, dear, that's not the sidewalk game you play after school) plaid in chocolate, honey and gold or the solid flared myrtle for the subtlest and most exact matches you could imagine.

Sweaters have three-quarter sleeves, pullover necks and small Peter Pan collars, or classic cardigan front closings.

Another collection starts with a stitched-pleat Shetland skirt ($17.95) in royal and grey plaid and a Shetland cardigan to match (solid color, of course) at $11.95. With any of the Shetland cardigans you could wear a gold and brown plaid skirt, a verdi-green (oh, well, — olive) or a rust. There are also two magnificent swirling plaid skirts in dazzling green plaid or just as bright red.

A third group features cashmere in sweaters and skirts. The Dalton sweater comes in colors like the fur-blend sweater colors. Style is a squared off collar with buttons down the front. The skirts that go with these sweaters are especially noteworthy, fashioned with exquisite detailing and hand-stitching. Green, a brighter red than that cranberry and old gold are on the racks now, with grey, if you want it, in a fur blend.

Classic Shetlands made for Bellows in Scotland are full-fashioned with an inside front ribbon which makes the whole sweater one creamy sweep of color. A deep, rich chocolate, terra cotta, harvest gold, navy, true red and forest green are the colors, $14.95 the price.

Younger friskies will want the bulkies made to go with skinny pants. Bright royal and emerald enhance a white sweater: the colorful plaid is purposely designed not to "meet" and the effect is exhilarating. A very kooky sweater is a yarn-dyed multi color tweed, long and straight, with greys and pinks or blues and greens.

Over in mother's department are Kimberly Knits and Italian knits in the suavest designs you ever saw. A black knit cocktail dress has a high, square-cut neck, no sleeves and slight gathers at the straight skirt. Before the cocktail hour, wear the jacket that ties loosely at the throat and goes on from there with black buttons and a deeply notched hem bound with something that looks like braid. The most versatile dress on any of your hangers.

If you have no insides at all, you'll be slim enough to wear a seed-stitch cable knit with three-quarter sleeves, belt and banded neckline in gold. These knits start at $39.95.

The queen of them all is a black knit pencil of a dress with cap sleeve and four inches of curving silk fringe around the bateau neckline. It's $110, but who counts?

Suede panels go down the jacket sides on an olive knit with a finely knit skirt that contrasts to the bulky, sporty jacket. A texture stitch has been used on the sleeves and at the sides of the suede.

The eternal camel's hair coat has been given a lift this year by a very wide cut, a shorter sleeve, a black knit band around the raised collar and side patch pockets. The big, wide cut appears again in a black and white fuzzy blanket plaid with immense patch pockets, an immense collar that buttons high like a turtle, if you want it to, and buttons a full two and one-half inches wide. $69.95.

Looped mohair in bright green makes a "reindeer tweed" coat with patch pockets and a pan collar. The demi-fit, front and back, characterizes another coat with short sleeves and the most youthful air this side of first grade.

Incorrigible classicists will buy the imported tweed in misty blue with a plaid lining that zips in for winter, out for spring. The lining extends even to the sleeves, if you can believe it. $55.

When's a Suit?

Bellows has the pleasant idea of incorporating into its fall suit collection a batch of two-piece co-ordinates, which is another way of saying "almost-suits".

Actually, of course, these are as well-suited to the term as the classic two-piece suit. What's different is the price. For $22.95 or $35, you may have a sleek two-some garment that looks quite as stylish as the two-some for which you might pay considerably more.

Look at the sheath skirt and collarless three-quarter sleeve jacket in corduroy as an example. Gold, bright ginger or olive are the colors, endless are the uses. Price: $22.95, or $29.95 in hopsacking.

Evan Picone's longer jacket looks like a wool flannel shirt in grey or loden. It's cut with a mannish revere collar that frames a bright scarf, and it's matched with a straight skirt.

Susan Kohner round out the pairings, with Hamilton as Zimbalist's son and Miss Kohner as a guardian of the senior member of Zimbalist's firm (Thomas Mitchell).

The acting does not wholly compensate for the poor screenplay, however. The intricate patterns of love developed in prose are discernible only if one is acquainted with the novel, making this one of those unique films where it helps to have read the book first.

THE GARDEN

Tiger Bay (August 7-12) would be little more than a fast-moving British chase film if it were not for the talent of Hayley Mills, the appealing young girl who made such a hit in "Pollyanna" and "The Parent Trap." Actually, "Tiger Bay" marked her film debut, preceeding the two Walt Disney productions which are rapidly making her as popular with the younger set as Shirley Temple or Margaret O'Brien once were.

In "Tiger Bay" Miss Mills is not permitted to monopolize the action, but she still manages to came close to stealing the show from two more senior performers, her father, John Mills, and Horst Buchholz. This is possible because Miss Mills, as Gillie, happens to see a Polish seaman, Korchinsky Buchholz, accidentally murder his girl. This makes Gillie a very important individual, for both the murderer and the police (represented primarily by John Mills as a Superintendent).

Korchinsky chases Gillie and the police chase both of them through the multi-racial district of London known as Tiger Bay, finally ending up in a thrilling shipboard climax. The rank production was directed by J. Lee Thompson.

Carry On, Sergeant (August 14-19) is a slapstick British comedy in the same vein as "Carry On, Nurse," both of which followed "Carry On, Sergeant" to the USA. We may be prejudiced, but we do not like slapstick British comedies, our brothers on the far side of the Atlantic are very brushes and you're in, except for the small matter of talent and training. What we are urging, at the moment, is that you explore the art of Sumi painting, courtesy of Kong Ping, the gift shop on Witherspoon Street.

It's New To Us

BIG AS LIFE: David hacks away at Goliath in the all-new production of "Goliath" scheduled to open Friday at the Lawrence Drive-In. On the same program is "The Roaring 20's," a story of the fast-living days of the jazz age.

For $2.95, you buy one of those lovely little wooden boxes with its complement of two Sumi brushes, inks, ink tray and blue and white flowered porcelain water holder. One instruction book, printed in Japan but not in Japanese, will tell you how to paint fruit and insects—with pictures.

The other book will show you how to paint bamboo. The pad of Shuji paper, 100 sheets for $1.25, will provide the background. The black and white drawings are supremely simple and look awfully easy to do. (The Japanese are a polite people and will not laugh. Although you may never reach the level of proficiency indicated by the fruit and insect drawings, think what fun you'll have.

Not to be confused with Sumi are the Soma cups, teapots and drinking ware made to look like two layers of ceramics. A cup-within-a-cup has a pierced outer layer which is quite decorative and which serves to insulate the cup within.

Highballs and old-fashioneds are the same, done in a grey and green-brown combination. For high tea, you'll want the teapot and for just one cup the $2 baby teapot. Sugar and cream don't need the insulation provided by the pierced outer layer, but they have it anyway, just to keep company.

Bead room dividers are good when you need only a suggestion of division. Strings six and one-half feet long stretch out to three feet in width when you draw them across the rod. You may have brown and tan; navy, white and yellow or natural bamboo in globe and oval shapes, for $14.95. Long cylinders of bamboo are somewhat less.

To keep the homework people happy this fall, buy them small size kimonos or happy coats to wear while studying Japanese. Pajamas go with most of these, but the happy coats are alone. A white rayon brocade has a red frog closing, and the light blue has white. These coats are no bigger than a frog themselves, you know.

Teen agers or small mothers can wear a pair of pongee pajamas ($9.50) bound narrowly with brown piping and sketched out with Mandarin collar, frog closing, three-quarter sleeve. The pants are held up with a draw-string closing, which means the outfit can be worn by almost any size.

Coolies among you can wear a raw silk coolie jacket with casual, rolled cuff three-quarter sleeves and the classic collar and frog. The length is about to the hip and the color is, of course, natural. $10.95 for a really handsome accessory garment.

For $3 or $3.50, you may buy a child's bright kimono, as cheerful as a nosegay of bright chrysanthemums. Prints are "assorted", which means there are a million different ones to choose from.

Question Of The Week

within a budget. They have so many pennies to work with and I think they can make them stretch. A man will throw away a dollar quicker than a woman will.

Mrs. Mary Christenson, 410-B Devereux Avenue, housewife: I think maybe men are because they are more stingy with their money. This may be just in the case of graduate students' wives, however, since none of them have any.

John Hale, Morristown, retired: Women. They have less of it and have to conserve it more.

Mrs. David Granskou, 73 Wheatsheaf Lane, housewife: I think women are. They are more aware of the major as well as the minor necessities, especialy if there are children. I would say even in buying groceries women are more likely to look for discounts and values.

Mrs. Mark Stavig, 225-D King Street, housewife: From my own experience, I would say men. I tend to try to ignore financial problems until I am reminded of them by my husband.

transferring the employees themselves, the firm has been unable to provide assistance to individuals in relocating their families—but it has tried to help. It began by warning them of the proposed move several years ago, giving employees such as division general manager C. D. Siverd time to build homes in the Princeton area.

Then, last fall it ran Saturday bus trips for employees and their families from each of the three locations to

Benjamin L. Palumbo

Princeton. The tours were designed to give an idea of the areas surrounding the Agricultural Center (including Kendall Park, Princeton, Hopewell, Pennington, Lawrence and Ewing Townships and Mercerville).

In addition, the firm prepared a 23-page booklet describing each of the municipalities, giving their tax structures and the price range of homes therein. It also contacted area realtors for assistance and established an information office at the plant guardhouse.

To reduce the financial burden of relocating, American Cyanamid is paying its transplanted employees for practically every expense they incur. The cost is estimated in the thousands of dollars per employee.

Most of the newcomers will locate in Mercer County, although some may live in Middlesex County or in Pennsylvania. Because the incoming group includes almost exclusively well-paid scientists and executives, its arrival means a large influx of spending power into the area.

On the other hand, however, because most of the newcomers have families, it will also mean an influx of school children. Traffic problems are also expected at the Clarksville light on Route 1.

DIRECTOR APPOINTED

For Chamber of Commerce. Benjamin L. Palumbo has been named Executive Director of the Greater Princeton Chamber of Commerce and Civic Council, according to an announcement made this week by Fred M. Blaicher, president of the chamber. Mr. Palumbo, who has already assumed his new duties, takes over the post from Miss Beatrice Meirs, whose resignation was recently announced.

The new executive director comes to Princeton from the Rutgers' Bureau of Government Research, where he was a research assistant. Before joining the Rutgers' bureau, he taught school in Trenton.

A graduate of Rutgers, he holds a master's degree in political science from that institution as well. He has recently returned from the Institute for Organization Management held in Syracuse by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Palumbo will move to Princeton shortly.

News Of The THEATRES

ANOUILH WORK UNEVEN

Players' Fifth Production. Skipping 58 years in three days, the Princeton Players have turned from 19th century Ibsen to 20th century Jean Anouilh, whose "Romeo and Jeannette" is the current offering at the Country Day School. Frequent changes of mood, emphasis and development make it difficult to grasp the nettle of the author's intent, and the four acts allow for plenty of dialogue with little conclusion.

Like "The Lady from the Sea," the Anouilh play is given in the round and with good results. The action and stage business flow smoothly, and through the veil of the contradictory approaches to the "story," there is involvement in the play.

The battle of the sexes is developed with plenty of cynicism. The female triumphs (and therefore loses), although the author goes along with the Gallic motto, "Vive la difference!"

With Julia and Jeannette, Anouilh has let loose an imagination that might have startled and perhaps amused Shakespeare. Jeannette, beautifully taken by Maria Tucci, is the "bad" girl with child-like dreams and inconsistencies. (Anouilh's heroines have an unfortunate tendency to be cut from this cloth.)

Jill Fremon, as Julia, has a somewhat vapid part, which could be improved with more vigorous delivery. However, the point is made, and Jeannette proceeds to run off with Julia's fiance, Frederick, capturing him with her unfettered view of the world and finally persuading him to commit suicide with her.

The object of this tug-of-war seems hardly worth the trouble. Frederick, for all his worthwhile attributes, seems a very dull young man, and Paul Glickler is unable to make his role come alive.

Joseph Fitchett, Players' co-producer, takes the part of the brother, Lucien, and delivers some extremely hackneyed sentiments with verve and aplomb. An embittered young man, whose wife deserted him two years before the play opens, he becomes the mouthpiece for the author's irony, wit and philosophizing.

Edward Callanan is a marvelous father, living in a dream world far from the squalor of his present state. His expansive gestures and strong voice rise above the soul-searching of his children. His character is ridiculous, and sympathetic.

As Frederick's mother, Nellie Morrell ably expresses the reaction of the worker against the drone. The cast does an admirable job with a dificult play. Miss Tucci deserves special credit of making stormy emotions seem vital and consistent, when the lovers' trials descend from tragic to pathetic to just plain silly.

The Players have done a commendable job in staging this wordy and diffuse work, whose approach is more suited to a novel than a drama. Those who enjoyed the University Players' production of "Eurydice" or want to see an able staging of the work of this eminent playwright should make a point of going to "Romeo and Jeannette."

the Borough police motorcycle at the corner of Stockton Street and Bayard Lane because he was distracted by a passing girl.

Mr Fletcher, who is 17 and lives at 7 Garth Avenue, Trenton, was making a left turn from Stockton Street at the time. The cycle, driven by Patrolman Harry J Kahny, suffered minor damage and was out of commission for a day.

In other accidents, Henry Owens Jr., 27, 14 Quarry Street struck a parked car on John Street at 2 55 p m Monday He claimed he stopped to avoid hitting a child who ran out from between parked cars.

Also, John W Johnson, 20, of Hightstown hit the car of Harold W Phox, 11 Birch Avenue, while it was parked on Witherspoon Street Saturday afternoon The impact drove Mr Phox's car almost 21 feet and damaged the transmission Mr Johnson's passenger, Lucille W. Hart, 35, of Hightstown, was admitted to Princeton Hospital with a possible concussion and whiplash injury.

A SWING AND A MISS

In Attempted Holdup. A holdup man swung at proprietor Charles Bowling with an iron bar Saturday afternoon while trying to rob the Richfield gas station at the corner of Witherspoon and Hulfish Streets. Mr. Bowling ducked and struck the would-be robber, who fled.

Borough police described the man as colored, about 5 feet, 6 inches, 200 pounds, with a pockmarked face and wearing a sport shirt and blue pants He is wanted for attempted robbery and assault.

LIGHTNING HITS HOUSE

In Thursday's Storm. Lightning struck the home of Dr and Mrs U K Heidelauf, 47 Scott Lane, during Thursday's early-morning thunderstorm.

The holt hit the Heidelauf's television antenna about 7 a.m., according to Borough police. It burned several holes in the ceiling and damaged electrical fixtures, the police reported.

I WON A RIBBON

In Playground Contests. The fun and competition continue at community playgrounds in Borough and Township.

Valley Road won the first annual inter-playground track meet, held at the High School track. Richard Lockhart won the 75-yard dash, the broad jump and was a member of the 440-yard relay team.

Juanita Cox won the girls' 50-yard dash and Bill Hammer won the 880 yard walk for boys. Valley Road won on points with 27, High School and Littlebrook each had six, Harrison five and Riverside one.

At Grover Avenue, Bill Aust received a special award for good sportsmanship and leadership. Peter Aschenbrenner received a merit award in a costume show and Toni Ferrara, Mary Ann Telese, Robert Spalding, Anthony Ferrara, Barbara and Lynn Sejnoski and Gordon Young won ribbons.

Hobbyists at Littlebrook displayed their collections in a recent show. Bob Daum won first place in the stamp collection; Howard Glicksman first in the coin group; Marion Hackenberg first for "most unusual hobby"; Dave Patlovitch for "most complete hobby"; Debby Daum for best doll collection. In the dog show, Alan Swartzstein won first place for his dog, "Chico."

In a recent pingpong tournament at Johnson Park, John Ahrens, Anne Rimalover and Ann Goeke won ribbons; Anne Goeke and Anne Rimalover took prizes for the funniest costumes; Beth Rimalover for the most original; Kathy McCarthy for the prettiest. Mark Savitsky won a chess tournament at Harrison Park.

In the older group at the high school, Richie Volz won first place in the chess tournament. Tony Pirone took first place in foul shooting and Gregory Bancroft won first place in the spelling bee. In the weekly physical fitness test, Jack Petrone took the top place.

Jeff Bullock, Pepper Provanzano and Sal Lauro are outstanding ping-pong players at Valley Road in the younger group. In the older group, Wilbur Hines, George McGowan and Mike Floyd are in the top league.

Obituaries

Dr. Claude E. Robinson, 61, chairman of the executive committee of Opinion Research and a director of Gallup and Robinson Inc., died August 7 at Columbia Presbyterian Hospital, New York City. A resident of Stockton, he had returned to the hospital for treatment of hepatitis, which had developed following a successful cancer operation.

The founder of ORC, he later established the Public Opinion Index for Industry as part of the organization. The Index is a continuing research program, supported by 80 corporations and associations, and deals with management problems.

Dr Robinson organized and headed The Princeton Panel, "A Center for the study and Teaching of the Principles of American Capitalism," as a separate entity This fall, D. Van Nostrand Company will publish his book, "Understanding Profits," completed just before his death as part of the Panel's library.

He was associate director of the American Institute of Public Opinion, the Gallup Poll organization, before establishing ORC. He was president and chairman of ORC before assuming the executive committee chairmanship In 1960 He was also chairman and president of Princeton Research Park, a projected center for advanced research laboratories, located on Terhune Road

During the 1960 presidential campaign Dr Robinson served as Vice President Nixon's research counselor. Among his writings is 'Straw Votes, a Study in Political Prediction." Born in Portland, Ore., he was a graduate of the University of Oregan and earned his Ph D degree in sociology from Columbia University

Dr Robinson was a trustee of the Committee for Economic Development and the Foundation for Economic Education He was a member of the Republican Committee on Program and Progress, the American Association for Public Research, the American Statistical Association, the Public Relations Society of America, the Masons and Phi Beta Kappa.

good when it comes to subtle, satirical comedy but they lose out when they try to ham it up like the Three Stooges.

In this case, the individual who is "carrying on" is an army sergeant vaguely reminiscent of America's own Ernie Bilko. The sergeant, portrayed by William Hartnell, is about to retire and wants to leave with a perfect record. This means he wants to have his men acclaimed as the army's best-schooled soldiers, which requires a good deal of fast footwork. Helping out with the shenanigans are a group of character actors who might be fine if teamed with the right star but here aren't even up to the level of Bilko's sidekicks.

Peter Rogers produced and Gerald Thomas directed this rather flimsy farce, with the screenplay by Norman Hudis (who also perpetrated "Carry On, Nurse"). Although produced in the same country, it's not in a class with "The Mouse that Roared" and other fine British comedies.

DISNEY FILM PLANNED

For Four Showings. "The Living Desert", Walt Disney's color film about life in the American desert, will be shown free of charge next week by the YMCA at four different locations. Each performance will start at 9 p.m., Tuesday through Friday.

The first showing will be Tuesday at Riverside School, followed by showings at Harrison Street Playground next Wednesday; Valley Road School playground next Thursday and the Princeton Shopping Center Mall next Friday.

In case of rain the last three nights, the film will be shown at the "Y". If it rains Tuesday night, the film will be shown under the roof of the Riverside School playspace. Spectators should bring blankets to sit on.

The 75-minute color film has received a special Parents Magazine Award as outstanding for children. It describes in detail the inter-relationship of hawks, scorpions, kangaroo rats, owls, road runners and other desert animals.

FELLOWS ARE NAMED

On Guggenheim Fellowships. Eight of the country's leading young engineers and students of aerospace sciences will come to Princeton University this fall for a year's study under the Daniell and Florence Guggenheim Fellowships for graduate study in jet propulsion, space flight science and flight structure.

The awards were given to 13 young scientists. The remaining five will study at either Columbia or the California Institute of Technology. The awards carry a stipend of $1,200 to $2,000 per year plus tuition.

The Guggenheim Laboratories for the Aerospace Propulsion Sciences at Princeton were established this year, and include the Jet Propulsion Center set up in 1948 to provide research facilities for graduate students and to promote rapid technological development in the aerospace sciences.

Seven new fellows were named for graduate study at Princeton and one fellow had his fellowship renewed. He is Kenneth M. Nicoll, of Irvine, Ayrshire, Scotland.

STABILE WITHDRAWS

From State Senate Race. Frank S. Stabile, candidate for the New Jersey State Senate on the Republican ticket, has withdrawn his candidacy because of ill health, according to an announcement made this week by A. Jerome Moore, Republican County chairman.

Mr. Moore said that an executive committee meeting will be held shortly to nominate Mr. Stabile's successor. The candidate, who has been ailing for several months, will offer assistance and advice to Republicans in the forthcoming campaign.

"We are deeply thankful for Frank Stabile's personal efforts and selfless contributions to the Republican cause in our county," said Mr. Moore. "We are particularly grateful for the real personal sacrifices which his continued participation in the campaign have required over the past few months."

Street Fair in New Hope. Visitors are invited to attend the New Hope Gay Nineties Stree Fair dressed in the costumes of the period. The Fair, which will be held this Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 7 p.m. until 1 a.m., will feature dancing under the stars, crafts booths, theatre personalities and Japanese lanterns.

Portrait sketches of visitors will be made by Paul Flegal, Alden Wicks and Hilah Remaily. Horses will provide wagon rides and barge rides on the canal. There will be an auction each night, games of "chance and skill" and dance music by Jack Hobson and his "Dark Town Strutters" and Bill Bell and his "Belairs."

"The Fireman's Cavalcade", written and produced by Daniel Lounsberry, TV producer, will have performances by Odette Myrtil, Mike Ellis, Nelson Case and Penny Larsen, and greetings from Nancy Kelly and Burgess Meredith.

In addition there will be a Gay Nineties Fashion Show and a Gay Nineties Strip-Tease, with music of a nickelodeon and Adolph and his accordion.

Such artists as John Folinsbee, Harry Rosin, Jean Halter, Charlie Ward and Mr Wicks will exhibit their works. Co-sponsors of the fair are the Eagle Fire Company of New Hope and the New Hope Business Association.

POOL ON SECOND LAP

At Rocky Hill. Children enrolled in the summer recreation program at the River Road Recreation Association pool at Rocky Hill, are now in the second half of the summer session, with approximately one month left in the 1961 season.

Mornings at the free pool are reserved for swimming lessons, afternoons for recreational swimming. Those who are enrolled in the swimming classes will be tested by Red Cross standards at the end of the summer term.

On Wednesday, August 30, at 10 a.m., there will be a swimming meet open to boys and girls from 10 to 17 and including both swimming and diving events.

In swimming, the events will be 10 years and under, 50 foot freestyle, breaststroke, butterfly and backstroke; 11 years, 100 foot freestyle, breaststroke, butterfly and backstroke; 12 and 13 years, 200 foot freestyle, 100 foot breaststroke butterfly and backstroke; 14 years and over, 100 yard freestyle, breaststroke, backstroke; 200 foot butterfly and 400 foot individual medley.

The diving event will consist of these events: 10 years and under, one required dive and one optional; 11 years, one required and one optional; 12 and 13, one required and one optional; 14 years and older, one required and two optional.

Supervisors and instructors at the pool are Cynthia Sanner, Bruce Nystrom, Howard Movshovitz and Carl Palumbo.

SCHOOL NEEDED?

Parents Study Situation. A group of Princeton parents has begun to study the possibility of establishing a school and pre-school for severely retarded children who live in the Princeton area.

An exploratory meeting was held Saturday at the home of Mrs. Donald Marshall, and a second meeting will be held at Mrs. Marshall's home, 108 Dempsey Avenue, within the next few weeks.

Parents who are interested in establishing facilities for these children may obtain additional information by calling WA 4-5410. The decision to study Princeton's need for schooling the retarded and for an activities center follows questioning of physicians and educators.

LICENSE SUSPENDED

Under Point System. Two drivers in the Princeton area are listed this week by the New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles for license suspension. Everett O. Jones, 43, 26 Alexander Street, has had his license suspended for one month under the state's point system. Donald Jennings, 44, Fackler Road, Lawrence Township, also lost his license for a month under the point system.

ART, MUSIC PLANNED

For September Exhibit. An outdoor concert and art exhibit will be held late in September at the Alma White College, Zarepath, under the auspices of the South Somerset Guild of Creative Art. Plans for the event will be discussed at the next meeting of the guild, to be held September 12 at the Hillsboro School, Route 206.

At the concert and art exhibit, there will be exhibitions of paintings and art works by artists in the area and music by and orchestra composed of residents playing under the direction of Anthony Camillo.

Director of the Alma White College orchestra, Mr. Camillo is the teacher and director of the student orchestra at Middlesex High School. He is also co-chairman of the Middlesex County Orchestra.

LICENSE SUSPENDED

For Poultry Farm. The Triple R Poultry Farm, Monmouth Junction, has had its license suspended for a period of 30 days by Secretary of Agriculture Phillip Alampi. The license enables a farm to use the New Jersey Department of Agriculture's State Seal of Quality on egg cartons or cases.

The action was taken following a formal hearing at which State Department of Agriculture inspectors testified that two shipments of eggs packed by the Monmouth

Report from THE MAYOR

Good News. The official family at Borough Hall was cheered by the news that Borough Clerk Bob Mooney's hospital sojourn would soon end on a hopeful note that he would soon be back where he wants so much to be—at his desk. Meanwhile, he was squirming in the hospital bed because he did not want to miss Tuesday's Council meeting; though he knew that Deputy Borough Clerk Elizabeth MacMillan would pinch-hit in competent fashion.

To The Chairman. Bob Mooney was also fretting because he had to miss the annual outing of Mercer Engine Co. No. 3 on Saturday. Bob was chairman of the event; and it can be reported that with Bob's advance planning and some last minute chores by Fire Chief Karl Bohn and the cooperation of the weather man the firemen and their guests had a fine day.

The good will of the three company outings is another of the ingredients that keeps Princeton's efficient fire fighters on a volunteer basis. The community might appreciate them all the more if this service were translated into its equivalent in tax points.

Overdue. One of the items of Borough business that needs attention in the very near future is the revision and codification of our municipal ordinances. The last revision, published in 1951, was done as a public service by Charles T. Cowenhoven.

In the decade since, there have been many additions and changes which are not in conviently available form. Also, as times change, Council may wish to take another look at some items that seem strange in today's Princeton.

One example: among the license fees, the Borough Clerk is authorized "under signature of the Mayor and the Borough Seal" to collect "For each organ grinder on foot, the sum of $10 a year, and for each organ grinder using one or more beasts of burden to pull said organ or using a vehicle propelled by its motor power, $15 a year."

A Chance To Help. On a recent Sunday, the Red Cross call to the Mayor for the donation of blood had a special note of urgency. It seems that with summer vacations at their peak, the Blood Donor service is especially hard pressed to meet emergent needs.

Here is a real chance for those who have been meaning to offer their help in this vital cause to volunteer at a critical time. As the Mayor can again attest, it is painless and the reward comes in the satisfaction of knowing that this is another service in Princeton that costs nothing but is ever ready to help when we need help most.

On The Calendar. On last week's calendar, the Mayor presided at the agenda preparation session of the Council in preparation for this week's regular meeting; met with the Public Safety Committee of Council and Chief Mondone on police matters; attended another special session of the Public Library Board in relation to future building plans; and planned a series of visits to other towns to check on new developments in municipal housekeeping.

Tell It To The Mayor! The regular open house is scheduled for Friday, August 18, from 7 to 10 p.m. at Borough Hall. No appointment is ever necessary for these informal meetings.

WE'RE GOING BACK — To college, that is. Robin Colen (left) of Hightstown and Joan Mills of Pennington have been chosen by Bamberger's to guide freshmen through the maze of clothes racks and help them select the right things to wear for the right occasion. Robin is a junior at Syracuse University and Joan attends Bates College.

STABLE BURNS AGAIN: A second fire last Wednesday afternoon spurted out of the ruins of the first at the Princeton Riding Club on Bayard Lane and burned for about two hours until firemen were able to put it out. The drenching rain Wednesday night extinguished the last of the smoking ruins. The precise cause of the fire is still unknown, although fire Chief Karl F. Bohn believes that it was electrical. He says that the main wire was burned off, but whether this was the cause or merely an effect, no one knows. Spontaneous combustion in the baled hay stored at the stable has also been advanced as the cause. So far, no insurance investigators have appeared on the scene and the owner, Mrs. Anita M. Hazek, is still out of town. (Richard Steiner Photo.)

Junction firm did not meet the quality standards necessary for use of the seal.

In issuing the order for suspension Secretary Alampi stated that the violation "jeopardized the value and integrity of the state seal in the minds of users of eggs so identified officially." The seal may be affixed only to eggs which are produced in New Jersey, which meet high quality standards and which are inspected under Department supervision.

The owners of the Triple R. Farm are Walter B. Rosenstock, Lena Rosenstock, Hans S. Rosenstock and Jacob Weintraub.

CARILLON PERFECTED

By Dr. Bigelow. During the next few weeks, construction will begin on a renovated carillon for Cleveland Tower in the Graduate College, a carillon which will have bells of such precise acoustical balance that they will be able to render accurately not only simple hymn tunes, but such musical complexities as Bach fugues and Beethoven sonatas.

Specifications for the carillon are the results of 20 years of research conducted by Dr. Arthur L. Bigelow, professor of engineering at Princeton and bellmaster of the University.

The carillon has been considered deficient as a musical instrument, Dr. Bigelow explains, because it is acoustically out of balance in the upper register. The small treble bells have never matched the loudness and ring of the big bass bells, so the high notes have often sounded "tinny."

In addition, even well-tuned bells sound out of tune because a bell has a series of overtone which are not in harmonic pattern with natural instruments, Dr. Bigelow says. Instead of forming a major chord, the bell produces a minor third overtone which gives an discordant effect.

However, this can be partially overcome by adapting the composition to avoid the medium range of bells where the minor thirds are strongest. It is the total balance from bass to treble that is the most important factor in the carillon's acceptance as a musical instrument, Dr. Bigelow says, and this has been the chief concern of his research.

Working in an echo-free room at RCA, Dr. Bigelow worked out an acoustically accurate standard for the minimum weights each trebel bell must have to produce sounds as intense as those produced by bass bells. His investigations are the first acoustical analysis of the carillon with a perfect musical instrument as the goal.

To renovate the Cleveland Tower carillon, many bells will be replaced and 37 new bells will be added, making a total of 67 and extending the instrument's range an octave and a half higher. The renovated instrument will be presented to the University as a gift from Princeton's class of 1892. Work is scheduled for completion next year.

STARS FOR A ROOF

At Teen Dance. The Summer Teens of the YM-YWCA will hold their mid-summer informal hop from 9 p.m. to midnight this Friday at the "Y".

The program will include, in addition to dancing, informal games such as ping pong and bridge. Refreshments will be served. Reservations may be made by calling WA 4-4825. Edward Horner and Mrs. Harold Vaughan are directors of the teen program.

NO SOAP

Detergents Pollute. Detergents have become a serious pollution problem in streams and wells, and the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association has asked householders to help by using only enough detergent to clean clothes and dishes and "no more".

The Association says that the foam which is often visible on the surface of a stream is likely to be soapsuds, or detergent suds, from washing machines or dishwashers. Detergents are complex chemical compounds which travel, unaltered, through septic systems and municipal treatment plants. They also cause well pollution because they act as wetting agents, allowing water to penetrate cracks and pores too small for water to pass through otherwise.

So far, the Association says, chemists have not found a way to destroy the detergents in waste water. The only answer, therefore, is to use less detergent. This is also, the Association points out cannily, more economical for the householder.

PRINCETONIANS GO EAST

To Restore Roman Theatre. Two Princeton Theological Seminary professors are in the Near East this summer to reconstruct some of Caesar's work. They are heading an expedition to restore a 3000-seat Roman theatre carved out of the side of a cliff in Petra, Jordan.

Dr. Philip C. Hammond, assistant professor of Old Testament at the Seminary, organized the expedition and is being assisted by the Rev. John M. Salmon, also of the Seminary staff, and Dr. Howard Cox of Moravian Theological Seminary, Bethlehem, Pa. The group is working with the department of antiquities of Jordan at the site of Petra, the Biblical city of Sela'.

Sela' was the stronghold of the people called the Edomites. Later, at Petra, it became the capital of a commercial kingdom in the late Hellenistic and Early Roman Periods and controlled the major commercial routes of Syria and Palestine.

In 106 A.D., almost a century after the Roman conquest of the rest of the Near East, Petra fell and a short Roman occupation ensued. In the 12th century, Baldwin I established Crusader forts on the site to control communication routes, but with the fall of the Latin Kingdom in the late 13th century, Petra ceased to be of importance. It was rediscovered in 1812 by the German explorer John Burckhardt.

MARINE GRADUATE: Nicholas J. Kovalakides, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Kovalakides of 242 Nassau Street has graduated from the senior platoon leaders class at Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va. He is a graduate of Princeton High School and of the University of Maryland.

The Seminary expedition hopes to restore Petra's ancient Roman theatre to active use, much as the ancient theatres of Athens, Baalbek, Jerash and 'Amman have been restored. It visited Rome, Pompeii, Athens, Corinth, Beirut and Byblos on the way to Jordan, studying Greek and Roman theatres and related structures.

In addition to the Seminary, sponsors of the archaeological expedition include the American Philosophical Society, American Council of Learned Societies, Peter C. Cornell Trust, Moravian Theological Seminary, Forum of the Twelve Caesars in New York City, the Rev. Earl Douglass of 41 Armour Road, and Edward K. Love Jr. and Carl Noven, both of St. Louis, Mo.

Thomas B. Davinroy of 221-A Marshall is in El Paso, Texas, helping with the training of candidates of the Peace Corps. His work will entail the teaching of road building engineering. Mr. Davinroy is a graduate of Princeton, where he also received his master's degree in Civil Engineering. He has been a junior faculty member here for the past two years.

James M. Black, 1 Murray Place, has been appointed Executive Vice President of Metal Trades Association. Mr. Black who holds degrees from the University of South Carolina and Princeton University, is the author of books and articles on labor relations and management development programs.

Mrs. Gordon M. Fisher of 12 Madison Street and Samuel M. Keen of 110 Stockton Street have been appointed lecturers at Douglass College.

Mrs. Fisher who will lecture in mathematics received her master's from the University of Miami. She had previously taught at Tulane University, the University of Miami, Louisiana State University and at the University of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Keen, who received his bachelor's degree from Ursinus College and his master's degree from Princeton University, will lecture on religious history. He was a lecturer at Boston University and an instructor at the Princeton Seminary.

John C. Bullitt, Griggstown, has been appointed Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, according to an announcement this week from the Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon. He will assist John M. Leddy, the Assistant Secretary, with the department's responsibilities in international financial and monetary affairs.

A graduate of Harvard in 1950, Mr. Bullitt received his law degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1953. In the fall semester of 1960, he studied at the Woodrow Wilson school, concentrating on problems of underdeveloped countries. In August, 1959, he organized the book airlift to Moscow to re-open the Bookmobile at the American National Exhibition there.

Mr. Bullitt has been with the law firm of Shearman and Sterling, New York, where he has specialized in general corporate practice and in negotiating domestic and foreign loan transactions for banking clients. He operates a sheep farm in Griggstown, and is a member of the municipal council of Franklin Township.

APPOINTED TO TREASURY: John C. Bullitt, being sworn in as Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

Ernest C. Hogan, III of 275 Riverside Drive will enter Bethany College, Bethany, W. Va. He graduated from Princeton High School where he was a member of the boy's glee club, the school choir and

THEY'RE NOT SO OLD, AT THAT: The attraction was billed as the Old Timers' Game but when players who represented Princeton in the Twin-M League a decade ago took the field, they were ready to give a good account of themselves. In front are Jack Sweeney, Tom Brophy, Jack Petrone, Jim Kahny and George Sickel. Standing: James "Bing" Dennen, Benny McGuire, Steve Hogarty, George Peck, Warren Huff, Jim Carter, Tom Friel and Jim Brown. (TOWN TOPICS Photo by Dick Steiner.)

OLD TIMERS BOW

But Not in Spirit. The first of what promises to be a series of annual Old Timers' baseball games was staged on Bill Clarke Field Friday night with visible success. Attendance and enthusiasm fully warranted immediate plans to install the occasion as a traditional part of the Princeton summer scene.

Players who represented Princeton in the Twin-M League a decade and more ago came together as a team once more. Despite the passage of years, the ability which these stars of the immediate post-war era once displayed on Hodgson Field was visible again.

Paced by Manager Jack Petrone (who keeps up with the sport by playing in the Sportsmen's Softball League), the Ancients broke away to a two-run lead the first time they came to bat. Petrone sliced a single into the outfield that drove two of his mates across the plate.

Warren Huff collected two hits for the Old Timers, while Jim Brown and Jim Carter stood out defensively as they had so often at first base and behind the plate. The 2-0 lead actually was short-lived, the present day Princetonians (currently leading the Tri-County League) retaliating with three runs in their half of the first.

Jack Hawkins was the winning pitcher, with PAC manager Tom Petrone batting in his team's first run. The contest did not last long enough to be legal in baseball's technical sense, but the compromise was reached to assure more Old Timers' games in the years to come.

PLAYOFFS TO START

In Tri-County League. First-round playoffs will begin Monday in the Tri-County Baseball League, with the final games this week determining the order of finish and the opponents in the semi-final eliminations.

The team ending the season in first place will be at home Monday evening, with the third place team providing the opposition. The same night, the second-place entry will play host to the fourth-place team.

Fields will be exchanged Tuesday night for the best-of-three series, with the third game to be staged Thursday if necessary. Winners of the first round will begin a best-of-three playoff for the title on Monday, August 21.

Princeton A.C. won all three of its league games last week, in addition to the Old Timers' contest (see above). Tuesday saw Jack Lackey, captain of the 1961 Princetonians, record a 5-2 victory at Montgomery, where the PAC had not previously won this year.

On Thursday at Bill Clarke Field, Dick Olsen blanked Hightstown, 1 to 0. The third victim was South Brunswick, also shut out in a make-up game, 9 to 0. Once a contender for first place, South Brunswick was beaten three times last week, leaving Montgomery and Princeton to battle it out for the top spot.

Montgomery will come to Clarke Field Thursday night for the last game of the regular schedule. The starting time is 6:15.

FOOTBALL OUTLOOK — IV

(This is the last of a series of four articles on Princeton football prospects for 1961.)

Tigers in for Trouble. Along about 4 o'clock on the Indian Summer afternoon of Saturday, October 7, Princetonians should know whether their football team is headed for the lower berths in the Ivy League or whether it has a fair chance of finishing in first division.

The measuring stick will be provided in the form of a Columbia eleven which appears to have the best material to represent the Light Blue in more than a decade. Not since the immediate post-war season of 1945 has Columbia taken Princeton's measure. Belief here is that if the 1961 Lions, despite an apparent upswing in ability, actually prove themselves the better team, it will be a long fall indeed for the Orange and Black.

Last October, too, Columbia proved the turning point in the Princeton season. The New Yorkers came to Palmer Stadium floating a mile high after a convincing 37-0 drubbing of Brown.

Expectations were on the New Yorkers' side of the field that the victory might virtually be duplicated at Princeton's expense—even to the size of the score. The Tigers, however, rebounded from a 13-8 defeat at the hands of Rutgers and demolished Columbia, 49 to 0.

Twin Threat at Tailback. That was the game in which Hugh Scott and Jack Sullivan first demonstrated the one-two punch that kept the Tigers so dangerous throughout the season. The eye-filling attack, averaging four touchdowns per game in the last eight contests, was good for six straight triumphs before the loss to Yale's best team in nearly four decades and the fine comeback that produced a 7-0 victory over Dartmouth.

With very few exceptions, the surprising success achieved by the Tigers a year ago was clearly traceable to development in their third year on the varsity of a good group of seniors. Sophomores John Henrich and Dan Terpack came along beautifully to earn starting positions in the backfield, and junior Henry Large made giant strides in perfecting his play at right end.

But they were the exceptions. It was seniors Scott and Sullivan at tailbacks, seniors Jerry Sullivan and Dick Eckfeldt at center, and seniors—some of whom had been full-scale question marks—at every other line position who blended into an exciting, high-scoring machine.

This fall, the veteran touch will largely be replaced by inexperience, and any duplication of such rapid fusion under fire is wholly unlikely to occur. Best bet from the Tigers' point of view is that some of their usually toughest opponents (notably Harvard and Dartmouth) are likewise faced with major rebuilding problems.

Yale Is the Pick. For the first time since the Ivy League went formal six seasons back, the defending champion is the choice to repeat. Despite wholesale losses (10 of 11 starters graduated), Coach Jordan Olivar has enough solid replacement material to rank the Elis as pre-season favorites.

Only Captain Paul Bursiek remains in the line, but a standout backfield quarterbacked by southpaw pitching Bill Leckonby and bulwarked by line-busting Ted Hard at fullback will make the Blue a season-long threat. Somewhere along the line, last year's unbeaten string will be snapped, but with Yale the only solid team at the start of the firing, 6-1 and very possibly 5-2 should be good enough to win in 1961.

Watch for the new regime at Cornell to make a big jump upward from the last-place tie that culminated with the firing of Lefty James in 1960. Tom Harp, for five years backfield coach at football-minded Army, has stepped into the head coach's shoes at Ithaca, and a better-than-average supply of material awaits him.

Veteran backs who figure to make Cornell a high-scoring team include Dave McKelvey, Marcy Tino, George Telesh and Pat Pennucci, while good holdover material in the line and a dozen standout sophomores help brighten the renaissance program. It is unlikely that the Red will seriously challenge Yale in Harp's first year but a move from the depths of the standings to first division appears probable.

If ex-Princetonian John Stiegman is to be believed, the other team most likely to have a shot at the title is Pennsylvania. His first year at Philadelphia was a rough one, what with a bunch of T-football players converting en masse to the intricacies of the single wing, but the forthright Stieg thinks last year's troubles will be translated into this year's dividends.

He has tabbed his tailback the veteran Porter Shreve, as the "best all-around back in the league" and lists his Quakers as the team Yale must beat. Six returning regulars give Penn as bright a picture in this department as any Ivy eleven can boast. From where Princeton sits, last year's one-sided 21-0 romp over the Red and Blue is most unlikely to be duplicated.

Others Closely Bunched. The early line on the other teams leaves only Brown as a markedly weak entry. The Bruins' toothless offense of last fall will pick up because of a fair number of holdover lettermen, but defensive difficulties figure to anchor the Rhode Islanders in the cellar for a third straight year.

With Princeton, Harvard and Dartmouth are hardest hit by graduation because, unlike Yale, holdover material is less experienced. Nine of the Crimson's regulars are gone, and the extremely fast and elusive Hobie Armstrong, a sure starter at halfback, has dropped out of college. In the forthcoming shuffle of the Ivy standings, the Crimson appears quite likely to yield its third-place tie of 1960 for a second-division berth.

There's trouble, too, at Hanover, where Bob Blackman can claim to be the only coach faced with a 100 percent rebuilding job since the league became a reality in 1956. All 11 of his starters graduated.

Blackman, however, has no peer as a coach in the league, and is noted for his tough November teams. It could be that this year will be the first year in which the Indians finish out of first division, but they'll still be a mighty tough foe for Princeton in the final game of the season.

Columbia Hopeful. A quarterback with high passing potential in Tom Vassell and several good linemen give Columbia hope of bettering last year's fifth-place finish, highest spot achieved so far by the perenially undermanned New Yorkers. As indicated above, if they can top Princeton on October 7 at Baker Field, the 1961 standings will be in for some major reshuffling as far as these two teams are concerned.

The Tigers' other opponents, Rutgers and Colgate, figure to be as strong as they were a year ago when they meet the Orange and Black. At New Brunswick, Coach John Bateman has only one returning regular in his line but he is ex-Yaleman Alex Kroll, probably the best center in the east. Fullback Steve Simms, who averaged six yards per carry while the Scarlet was rolling to an 8-1 season a year ago, is the chief offensive threat.

Rutgers' last two victories over Princeton have been achieved by the slim margins of 13-8 and 8-6, but there is, unfortunately from where the Tiger sits, small reason to believe that the margin will be as close in 1961. The pendulum that swung so long toward Princeton in this oldest rivalry has gone the other way, and the difference in material now matriculating at the two Universities indicates that the Scarlet may retain the upper hand for a long time to come.

Colgate was no better than 2-7 last fall, and a 36-26 loser to the Tigers. Hopes are that Princeton can maintain its superiority over this opponent, but it must have enough to take this sophomore-dominated foe on an "off Saturday" between Pennsylvania and Cornell.

PROBLEMS AHEAD: Dick Colman has major rebuilding job ahead in preparing Princeton football team for 1961 season.

Last summer a 5-1 season was generally predicted as the best the Tigers could achieve. For reasons outlined above, they were able to leave such a mundane record far behind and earn a fine 7-2 mark and second-place Ivy standing.

Of their 1961 opponents, they should enter the game as favorites only over Columbia, Brown and Colgate. Rutgers, Yale, Cornell and probably Penn figure to have sufficient superiority over them so that a Princeton victory will rank as an upset.

Like the Tigers' future, Dartmouth's and Harvard's development by November poses so many question marks that a mid-summer rating can only tab these games as a toss-up. In a season when no opponent will be sufficiently weaker than Princeton to rank as a certain victim, and as many as six teams are as strong, or measurably stronger, it may well be an uphill struggle to top the break even point in 1961.

enabled Post 76 to take sole possession of first place in the Little League Baseball sponsored by the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association. The 9-1 victory at the expense of Engine Co. No. 1 was marked by 17 strikeouts credited to the winning pitcher for a league record.

Cirullo also chipped in with two hits in three trips to the plate. Others pacing the victors' attack were Brian Henninger (three for four), Jeff Bullock and Jimmy McNamara.

The Elks remained in last place by losing, 6-5, to Engine Co. No. 3, but Curt Mitchell hit a home run for the eight-place team. In other games, the Eagles held third place with a 5-3 decision over the Lions; the Sportsmen clinched fourth-place and a playoff spot with two victories; the Lions trimmed the Elks, 11-4, and the Elks topped Hook and Ladder, 8-6.

Playoffs will start Monday on Pardee Field, following the Shaughnessey system. The first and fourth place teams will meet in an elimination series, as will the second and third place entries.

The standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Post 76	11	1	917
Engine No. 1	9	2	818
Eagles	8	3	727
Sportsmen	8	4	667

WATER CO. FIRST

In Junior Baseball League. A pair of shutout victories for the Water Company over L. C. Bowers gave the winners the championship in the YMCA Junior Baseball League. The scores were 3-0 and 4-0.

In the latter game, Dave Munn allowed only one safety, while Bob Borcanfusn hit hard for the victors. Nassau Oil and Matthews were rained out, scheduling make-up games for this week. In other contests as the regular season reaches an end, Nassau Oil will face Bowers on Thursday and the Water Co. plays Matthews Friday.

The annual meeting between the All-Stars and the league champions is set for Monday night at 6:15 at Princeton High School. Holders of season tickets to YMCA games are asked to bring them.

The standings:

	W.	L.	Pts.
Water Co.	7	2	37
Nassau Oil	5	4	29
Bowers	3	5	26
Matthews	0	6	12

Bowers and Matthews each have two ties.

News Of The CHURCHES

DR. WEAVER TO LEAVE

Accepts Call to W. Va. The Rev. Dr. S. Robert Weaver, minister of the Princeton Baptist Church at Penns Neck, has accepted a call from the First Baptist Church, St. Albans, W. Va. He will take up his duties there Sunday, October 1.

The Rev. Dr. Weaver arrived from Regina, Saskatchewan, in September 1955 to take charge of the Penns Neck church. While there, Dr. Weaver also studied at the Princeton Theological Seminary, earning his Th.D this past June.

The St. Albans First Baptist Church has a membership of 1500, with a Sunday School enrollment of ever 1200. Mrs. Weaver and their six children will leave the end of this month to be in St. Albans for the opening of school.

BULLETIN NOTES

The congregation of the Second Presbyterian Church will adjourn to the sanctuary of the Second Church immediately following the Union Presbyterian Service Sunday to hear the report of its pulpit nominating committee. The church has been without a minister since the Rev. David L. Crawford joined the Princeton Theological Seminary staff last year.

The Lutheran Church of the Messiah will hold the first week-long session of its Vacation Church School next Monday to Friday. The 9 to 11 a.m. sessions will be for children from grades 3 through 7, with classes for children from 4 years through grade 2 scheduled to begin August 21. The theme will be "Jesus Christ" and teachers will include Mrs. Polly Beidler, Mrs. Joan Kirtland, Mrs. Carolyn Remus, Mrs. Arlene Succop, Mrs. Ingrid Rose, Edward Wojtkowski and the Rev. Harold Remus.

Any Old Clothes?

The St. Clair committee of Trinity Episcopal Church has issued a plea for cast-off garments for migrant workers. The clothes, which will be distributed by state officials working with the migrants, should be in good condition and sturdy.

All donations should be placed in the barrel in the Trinity Church Parish House. So far this summer, the barrel has already been filled twice, and a gift of $100 received to buy shoes for the migrant children.

PAC FINISHES FIRST

In Tri-County League. A first-place finish in the Tri-County Baseball League was assured for the Princeton Athletic Club this week when it scored shutout victories over South Brunswick and Hightstown. Manager Tom Petrone's team will face Montgomery at Bill Clarke Field this Thursday night at 6:15 before beginning the playoffs Monday against South Brunswick (see page 18.)

The triumph over South Brunswick was a forfeit, and went into the books as 7-0 when the losers could muster only eight players Tuesday evening on Clarke Field. Bruce Sandvik blanked Hightstown, 2-0.

It was a fine pitching performance by the Princeton High alumnus, as he fanned 12 batters, seven of them in a row. He bested Dick Stahl, former Trenton State Teachers star.

Both the PAC runs were scored in the first inning. Dick Borger singled, advanced on a fielder's choice and scored on Tom Petrone's safety. The manager later crossed the plate on an error, and Sandvik made both runs stand up throughout the full seven innings.

IVY INN WINS

Takes Softball Honors. Ivy Inn blanked the Sportsmen, 2-0, Thursday to win first place in the Sportsmen's Softball League and then laced Hinkson's, 10-1, in the first round of the playoffs.

Lou DeMeglio hurled both triumphs. Ivy Inn picked up single runs in the second and sixth to beat the second-place Sportsmen, who were held to three hits. A five-run second nailed down the first game against Hinkson's.

The final standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Ivy Inn	17	5	.773
Sportsmen	13	8	.619
King's Inn	11	10	.524
Hinkson's	2	20	.091

Our tale of a new type of house that provides more space for less bucks is dull-stuff for mansion dwellers. But if you're not averse to spending money wisely and you rather like the idea of plenty of room and light and air — inside as well as out, then let's talk. We'd like to explain and show you our concept of a new type of light-hearted living that we deeply believe in — the Techbuilt House.
